Levy Backers Told of Woes of City Plagued With 'Growing Pains'

Civic Committee Hears of Crippled Operations In 5 City Departments At Meeting Organizing Drive.

- 1—A city of nearly 40,000 population at times protected by only five police officers.
- 2—A fire department wholly undermanned with antiquated equipment for which repair parts must be sought in junk heaps.
- 3—Complete lack of supervised playgrounds undermining safety of children in the community.
- 4—An airport going to seed and the city being turned down by plane manufacturers as a possible site for plants due to the lack of proper air facilities.
- 5—Limited park facilities being partially maintained by funds contributed through park associations.

The financial plight of five city departments, as listed above, and the urgent need for additional funds to operate a city "suffering from growing pains" were outlined to members of the Citizens' Levy committee which met last night to map plans for conducting an intensive city-wide campaign to win approval of a one-mill operating levy at the Nov. 5 election.

The five points listed were driven home to representatives of civic organizations which gathered at City Hall to push the campaign for the levy, estimated to produce $37,000 annually for improving these city services.

Mayor William J. Locke told the group that the city is "suffering from growing pains" and that the need for additional funds was "urgent."

He cited the high financial standing of the municipality, pointing out that the levy was suggested as a "pay-as-you-go" proposition and would not burden the taxpayers of Mansfield with any additional taxes since more than $100,000 in bonds will have been retired in 1940 reducing the tax rate approximately two mills.

The levy was placed on the ballot by city council at its Sept. 3 meeting, the proposal to run for five years. It would add only $1 on $1,000 of taxable real estate.

Last night's session was held to organize the nucleus of an army of several hundred whose aim will be to conduct an extensive campaign throughout the city for the need of the levy.

Park board members told the need for additional park facilities and supervised playgrounds, citing increased juvenile delinquency and traffic casualties the past summer because of the limited facilities.

The group was told that Mansfield park associations annually provide $7,000 for operating the (Continued on Page 14, Col. 6)

DRAFT CHIEF?

U. of Wisconsin President In Line For Job.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, would become national director of registration and conscription was foreseen today when Secretary of War Stimson brought him to the White House for a conference with President Roosevelt.

Dykstra's name has been mentioned to head the draft board and the president recently advised reporters that he was only waiting to hear from the man to whom he had proffered the job before making an announcement.

The Wisconsin college president was city manager of Cincinnati during the early days of the New Deal and in that capacity came into close association with Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York in connection with the work of the Mayors conference.

County Agrees to Build North Main Span

TELLS CITY IT WON'T HAVE TO SHARE IN COST

CONCLUDES LONG SCRAP

Commissioners Say Board Will Call on State Only to Help Build Bridge.

Ending a drawn-out dispute over replacement of the North Main street bridge which collapsed more than a year ago, Richland county commissioners agreed today to build a new bridge immediately after the first of the year.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the bridge "will be the first thing on the county program for next year and the city won't be asked to help finance it."

He said the state highway department, which tentatively agreed to pay one-third of the cost several months ago, would be asked to bear as much of the cost as possible.

In a letter to commissioners several days ago, Mayor William J. Locke suggested that the county take steps to build the bridge for the safety of heavy traffic. He pointed out that the county had more than $35,000 left in its bond retirement funds after paying off all debts and urged commissioners to use a part of that for building a bridge.

"It has been customary for the state to help with the construction of bridges on state highways, and we are going to ask for as much as the highway department can allow," Mitchell said. "If the state wants to sponsor the job, we will pay a share of the cost," he added.

Mitchell said it never was the county commissioner's proposal that the city pay a third of the cost of a bridge.

"That suggestion, we understand, was made several months ago," (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

PRAISES LABOR

Bevin Demands Greater Effort In War Production.

SOUTHPORT, Eng. — (AP) — In a fighting speech to the British trades union congress, Labor Minister Ernest Bevin today demanded increased efforts from British labor so that "for every bomb Hitler drops, we will drop two."

Bevin, who became a member of the inner war cabinet during the recent governmental reshuffle declared:

"British labor has rescued the nation and commonwealth from the blackest moment in its history."

Praising labor's cooperation in the war effort, Bevin demanded more and more work so that "for every bomb Hitler drops we will drop two and every time he attacks we will retaliate in greater force."

"We must have equipment," said Bevin. "Force only will check these aggressors."

17,000 Registration Cards Received for County Draft

The Richland county election board has received more than 17,000 registration cards today for men between the ages of 21 and 35 who must register a week from today under the conscription act.

A. F. Porter, clerk of the board, said the cards and instruction sheets will be distributed to the 184 county registrars within a few days. Men will register at their regular voting places.

While the election board prepared for the job of registering thousands of men for army training, it was announced in Washington that all but five of Ohio's 82 counties have submitted recommendations for appointment of county draft boards by President Roosevelt. Only Cuyahoga, Hamilton, Lucas, Lorain, and Mahoning counties had not submitted recommendations today.

Situation In Balkans Becomes More Involved

This map illustrates the present critical state in which the Balkan states find themselves. 1—A German army division is en route to Rumania's oil fields, which German troops will garrison and effect a reorganization and training of the Rumanian army. 2—Bulgaria is expected soon to join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo axis—a move which would threaten the Dardanelles. 3—Meanwhile, Russia is reported exhibiting great interest in the strategically placed Bosphorus and Dardanelles. 4—Greece is reported still opposed to any territorial concessions though Italian-dominated Albania is anxious to acquire northeastern Greece and the Macedonians seek either independence or union with Bulgaria. 5—Turkey is in a highly perilous position, caught between conflicting ambitions of the Axis powers and those of Soviet Russia.

Public Vote on War Pledged by Willkie

Claims Right to Ask President About Foreign Policy

By THEODORE F. KOOP
EN ROUTE WITH WILLKIE THROUGH CONNECTICUT — (AP) — A refusal to "appease the dictators" and a pledge to let the people say whether they want war were coupled by Wendell L. Willkie before he started a combined train and auto campaign tour of New England today.

In a series of New York City talks last night, the Republican presidential nominee called for a strong national defense but advised against "shouting insults at the dictators or anyone else."

"Does anyone in this audience think that the president is really trying to keep us out of war?" he asked a flag-waving crowd in (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

Less Than Three Score Vets at Confederate Reunion.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Less than three score of the thousands who fought for the Confederacy were here today for the formal opening of the golden reunion of the United Confederate veterans.

The principal speaker is Dr. George Bolling Lee, grandson of General Robert E. Lee, and after a day of meetings and a band concert the delegates will be guests at the grand ball at the Mayflower hotel.

Several hundred members of organizations affiliated with the veterans attended the reunion but the interest centered on the thinning gray line of heroes of the campaigns of 1861-64 who gloried in recalling experiences of the war between the states.

Five Americans Among 18 Lost on Italian Steamer.

ROME — (INS) — Eighteen persons, including five Americans, were reported lost when the 1,858-ton Italian passenger steamer Franca Passio was torpedoed, according to reliable but unconfirmed information in Rome today. The reports said the steamer, plying between Genoa and Barcelona, was torpedoed on the week-end, probably on Saturday.

Wastebasket Tossing Reported Not Intentional.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Police said today that the waste basket which fell from a 23rd floor window of an office building when Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell L. The basket struck Frank Dan-jelson, a pedestrian, injuring him slightly.

FIGURES ON 2 METER TYPES

Mayor Indicates He Would Like to Try Manually Operated Devices.

Unless some unforeseen delay develops, Mansfield motorists will shortly be getting acquainted with two types of parking meters, both manually operated, when they stop their automobiles downtown.

Contract details have not yet been completed, but Mayor William J. Locke indicated today that he favored the installation for a nine-month trial period of two of the lower priced manually operated devices.

He said he "would like to try out" 50 or 60 National meters, manufactured by the Union Metal Manufacturing company of Canton, and "maybe" 200 or 300 of the Mi-co meters, made by the Michaels Art Bronze company, Covington, Ky.

The firms were among the six which submitted proposals Monday for the trial installation of (Continued on Page 18, Col. 5)

Miss Pace is said to have represented herself as the prospective bride to get the license after Miss Powers' parents refused to give their necessary legal consent to the marriage. Flynn and Miss Pace pleaded not guilty to the accusation and were released under $500 bond.

Say Air Bases In Indo-China Thwart British

Nipponese, After Years of Warfare, Assert They Are Now Ready for Direct Action; Chide U. S. On Evacuation Order.

TOKYO — Japan will close the Burma road with bombs if Britain persists in her determination to re-open this "backdoor" route linking China with vital sources of war materials, the Tokyo press intimated today.

Declaring the recent acquisition of airplane bases in French Indo-China has given Japan a tremendous strategical advantage against China, newspapers asserted the Japanese now are ready for direct action.

Further words are unnecessary, the prominent paper Nichi Nichi said, because Japan already has explained to third powers her determination to eliminate the supply routes of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

"Japan need no longer conduct any diplomatic negotiations with Britain," said this commentary. "The effect of stationing Japanese forces in Indo-China should now be displayed."

Yomiuri commented in the same vein.

The Burma road, built after Japan had succeeded in seizing most of China's seaboard, follows a tortuous 2,000 route from Chungking, provisional Chinese capital, to Rangoon in British Burma, which has a common frontier with Indo-China.

Japan's acquisition of Indo-China bases therefore has shortened by some 350 or 400 miles the distance which her bombers would be compelled to fly in an attempt to cut the road.

Some sections of the Tokyo press expressed belief the scheduled reopening of the Burma road Oct. 17 was only the prelude to more extensive British-United States assistance to China. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

OCCUPATION? Nazi Officers Reported In Bucharest Hotel

(By United Press)
BUCHAREST, Rumania — Fifteen German officers wearing civilian clothes were reported to have checked in at one hotel today and informants said that numerous German aviation officers were in the city.

Reports from Galatz, on the Danube at the edge of Russian-occupied Bessarabia, said that many German trucks were in the streets and that the drivers were in multi so it was not learned whether they were German soldiers or civil authorities supervising the evacuation of Germans from Bessarabia.

It was learned that the British legation had advised all Britons connected with the Rumanian oil industry to leave the country.

(At Stockholm, Sweden, the newspaper Tydningen said in a Berlin dispatch that German and Italian troops soon would press on from Rumania to Iraq's oil fields and that Turkey was rushing military preparations to oppose such a move.)

(At Belgrade, Yugoslavia, there were rumors that Germany was sending troops and military equipment down the Danube from Regensburg to Rumania.)

The Rumanian government last night replied to Great Britain's strong note asking for "elucidation" of the German military activity in Rumania. Sources close to the British legation said the reply gave "certain assurances of a general nature. The sources said Rumania's note had stressed a determination to cooperate with the Axis powers, with whom the country now was indisputably bound.

Britain was said to have inquired whether the German activities signified either an occupation or a fictitious occupation of Rumania and it was believed that Rumania's reply would determine whether Britain maintained diplomatic relations with Rumania.

The arrival at Constanza yesterday of 8,500 tons of Russian oil allayed some of the apprehension here over Russia's attitude toward the sending of German experts to "train the Rumanian army."

The advice to British oil men to leave the country indicated that Britain virtually was abandoning the millions of dollars of investments of her citizens in Rumanian oil fields.

Some quarters believed the German troops were going into the oil fields not so much to protect the wells as to arrange for rapid transportation of oil to Germany.

LONDON — German raiders hidden in the clouds attacked London in mid-morning today after overnight bombings in which big explosives smashed an air raid shelter which housed 160 persons and three wings of a hospital housing 108.

Eight were killed in the shelter and an undisclosed number of others were injured.

The bombed hospital was described as possibly the hardest-hit building in London where the raiding up to midnight was reported to be the most severe the city has undergone.

Three wings, two housing men patients and one housing women, were crumpled. Most of the patients were 80 years old or over — almost all of them permanent invalid cases.

As rescue crews dug for victims in the debris it was feared that not a single patient escaped either death or injury. How many were dead could not be determined because many had not been accounted for long after the attack.

The first daylight alarm was sounded some time after sounds of distant firing, apparently high above the clouds, were heard in London.

Raiders also were reported over the east coast. One town was dive-bombed and machine-gunned. In early afternoon eight German planes were seen over the Thames estuary, apparently headed for London. They were met by heavy anti-aircraft fire and turned back when British fighter planes rose to challenge them.

After the night attack glass streets were seen over the rubble that had been homes and workshops, and lengthening casualty lists were reported from 102 sections of England. Thirty-eight of the areas of new bomb damage devastation were in England. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Labor Law Violators Face Ban on Defense Contracts

COMMISSION TALKS OVER ELIGIBILITY

General Motors, Ford, DuPont and Bethlehem Steel Have Cases on Appeal.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON — The national defense advisory commission meets today, probably to discuss eligibility of labor law violators to obtain government contracts. No general policy is expected to be laid down.

The commission will have available, if it desires, a national labor relations board list of companies which have been found guilty of Wagner act violations and have appealed to federal courts.

Sidney Hillman, commission member and co-ordinator of labor supply, asked for that list on Oct. 5, the United Press was informed at board headquarters. It will not be made public.

The house committee investigating the board conducted a hurry-up investigation yesterday of reports that the defense commission had adopted a policy of barring contracts to firms on appeal from board findings that they had violated the Wagner act. All witnesses denied any such policy had been adopted, but Hillman said of the matter was to be the subject of early commission discussion.

William S. Knudsen, commissioner in charge of production, rejected the idea that such firms should be blacklisted. President John L. Lewis of the Congress of Industrial Organizations has been pressing the administration for legislative or executive action to prevent contract awards to violators of labor legislation. Hillman, a vice president of CIO, did not commit himself on the matter yesterday so far as it related to firms which had appeals pending.

Speaking in New York last night, Knudsen said it would be "going too far" to bar firms from contracts while their cases were before the courts. But once the courts upheld labor board findings against any firm, Knudsen believes contracts "should not be given the manufacturer until he changes his practices."

Among firms with Wagner act cases on appeal are General Motors, Ford Motor company, E. I. Du Pont de Nemours company, and Bethlehem Steel corporation. All important factors in national defense plans.

President Roosevelt avoided expressing an opinion on eligibility of firms appealing board decisions to obtain defense contracts. He referred questions to testimony before the house committee at which Secretary of Navy Frank Knox and Assistant Secretary of War Robert Patterson said that a firm's observance of labor laws would be a factor, but not necessarily a determining factor, in letting contracts.

Decision as to the eligibility of bidders to contracts probably will be determined on the merits of each case and not under any general policy to be adopted by the commission, the United Press was told.

Knudsen's policy in that respect probably will prevail in most cases—that is, a firm on appeal will be considered eligible to obtain government contracts.

Man's Right to Select His Own Funeral Upheld

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The second Ohio district court of appeals has, in effect, upheld the right of a man to contract for the kind of a funeral he wants.

The court added that it's up to the estate of the deceased to foot the bill for these arrangements.

The case involved the bill of a funeral director for $651 against the estate of the late David Harry Stern, Columbus.

The executor of the estate refused to pay the bill on grounds the legal limit for such bills is $350. The funeral director produced a contract made between himself and Stern before the latter's death providing for the more expensive rites. The court upheld the director.

CHIEF ELECTED

BUENOS AIRES—Police Chief A. L. Stuckert of Buenos Aires was elected first vice president of the Ohio Association of Police Chiefs when the organization wound up its 1940 convention in Akron yesterday.

Stuckert was named president at the closing session, and Columbus was chosen for the 1941 convention.

Trapped Sonman Miner Kept Log of Death

Another Mansfielder will join the growing list of Mansfield authors sometime within the next few weeks. Allan Griffin, a former teacher at John Simpson and now a member of the faculty at Ohio State university, has written a book entitled, "Freedom." A Columbus publisher, originally interested in the book, recently sold his rights to the Henry Holt Publishing company. The book is non-fiction.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch has a big red ring around the date Oct. 16 on the calendar in his office, but it wasn't until today that it was learned why the date had been circled. "That's the opening of duck hunting," he told Highway Patrolman W. C. Smith when the officer inquired about it. "I'm afraid I'll have to get someone to work for me on that day," the judge added.

Chilly weather may have come earlier than usual this fall, but the coming winter won't be as severe and there won't be as much snow as last winter—if we can believe the old timers' forecast from nature's signs. One aged Richland countyman said the thin corn husks, the light fruit crop, and other equally "reliable" signs point to an open winter. County Agent George B. Ganyard quoted another veteran forecaster as saying that the fall months will be mild and sunny because it was fair on a certain day in September which always indicates what the following weeks will be like. And the average fellow who buys coal and drives a car probably hopes the "sure-fire" forecasters are right.

William Alier, South Mulberry street, found a bunch of the rapidly disappearing paw-paws in the country near Marion yesterday and brought one of them to the county treasurer's office. Once a familiar fruit around here, they are seldom found now. A paw-paw is about four inches long and resembles a green banana. They grow in clusters like bananas, with the blossom end upward.

9 WARNED OF RETIRING AGE

City Employees Reaching 70
Told They Must Obtain Permission to Stay On.

Nine city employees who have reached the retirement age of 70 have been notified by the Public Retirement board in Columbus that they have less than 90 days in which to obtain permission to continue their employment with the city for another year.

The Public Employees Retirement system—a social security form of annuity for persons in public employ which covers the city workers—provides that members who reach the age of 70 or before Dec. 31, must either retire on that date or apply to the retirement board for permission to continue in active service for another year. Applications must have the approval of the municipal appointing authority.

Letters to the workers warned that the applications must be filed with the board by Dec. 31 otherwise payment of salary to any member will be illegal after that date.

Employees who must file their applications with Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton for approval include seven who have been working during the past year on a continuance granted in December 1939, and two employees who reached the retirement age during the past year.

Those now working on these applications are John Dorman, Theobald Schmidt, Alexander Schwab, Alonzo E. Stoughton and John E. Young, all waterworks employees, and John H. Dir, sewage plant operator.

The two who became 70 the past year are Dexter W. Hamblin, inspector in the engineering department, and Michael G. Knoflock, truck driver in the garbage department.

Retirement for municipal employees over 70 becomes compulsory Jan. 1, 1942.

SECRETS OF NAZI PROPAGANDA TO BE TOPIC OF LECTURE HERE

A distinguished refugee from Nazi persecution will deliver a lecture in Mansfield, Oct. 24, at John Simpson high school auditorium, when Eva Lips, author of "Savage Symphony" speaks on the secrets of German propaganda.

Mrs. Lips and her husband, both of pure Aryan blood, became voluntary exiles from their native land several years ago after they had waged a public battle against the uprising Nazi regime. In retaliation Hitler seized their home, their fortune and their German citizenship. She and her husband are among the many non-Jewish German writers and scientists who have been forced out of Germany because of opposition to Hitler and his dictatorial regime.

Mrs. Lips is author of the nation-wide best seller, "Savage Symphony," published in England under the title of "What Hitler Did To Us." Success of the book in this country resulted in a demand on Mrs. Lips for lectures over the country. Her husband is Prof. Lips, head of the department of anthropology of Howard university.

Her lecture in Mansfield will deal with the "propaganda factory" of Herr Goebbels and the manner in which radio has been used to spread German propaganda over the world.

Mrs. Lips' lecture in Mansfield is being sponsored by B'Nai Brith and its auxiliary, Mrs. Aaron Goldsmith, president of the women's auxiliary, and Mrs. L. Galen, general chairman, head the committee arranging for the Mansfield appearance.

Serving on the committee with Mrs. Goldsmith and Mrs. Galen are Mrs. M. J. Berer, Mrs. S. Frankel, Mrs. A. Smith, Mrs. B. W. Stern and Mrs. M. Bowsky.

Tickets for the lecture may be obtained at the Goldsmith store, Mansfield-Leland hotel office and the Tawse pharmacy. Proceeds from the affair will be used for B'Nai Brith's civic welfare and educational fund.

NOTES RELATE SIX HOURS OF HELPLESSNESS

Tells How 63 Entombed Men Went 'To Sleep Very Easily' Forever.

(By United Press)
EBENSBURG, Pa.—A dispassionate log of death kept by one of the 63 miners killed in the Sonman mine explosion last July 15 tells how the trapped miners "are going to sleep very easily."

The log, written by Jay Smith, recounts the six long hours he lived in the underground chamber wrecked by an explosion which trapped and killed 63 men.

It was found by investigators and revealed today by W. Stephen Mayer, district attorney of Cambria county.

The log as written in a notebook follows:

10:50 a. m.—Explosion occurred. Men did not know where to go or what to do. We all piled into motor road.

11:45 a. m.—We all sat down. Men began complaining about headache.

2:00 p. m.—Still quiet. No dust visible outside barricade.

2:30 p. m.—Two men went out to heading. Came back reported cool air but smelled like dynamite smoke from mud cap. Debate whether to do or stay. Two men went out and got bug bite. Men afraid to fight it.

2:40 p. m.—Ears were ringing. Head was aching to beat hell.

Derringer Halts Tigers as Reds Win Championship

Snyder Working On Defense to Halt Fleming

Tyger Mentor Is Worried About Fleming, Sandusky Triple-Threat Star.

By CHARLES MARTIN, News-Journal Sports Editor.

DESPITE the whippings Sandusky high has absorbed this season, Coach Paul Snyder is not taking the Blue Streaks lightly as he preps his Tygers for an engagement at Sandusky Friday night.

"Our task this week is to set up an adequate defense to stop Sandusky's Ben Fleming, triple-threat backfield ace," the Mansfield Mentor stated today.

"If we can stop him and brush up our passing and running attacks we have an even chance of emerging with the decision," Snyder continued.

"Sandusky has been taking some bad beatings and every team has a good day so the Blue Streaks may be laying for us," Snyder said.

The Blue Streaks dropped a 31-7 decision to Canton McKinley last week, but reports coming from Sandusky say the club is in good spirits and out to erase the 9-0 beating suffered at Mansfield last year.

Fleming, a lanky colored boy who runs, passes and does most of the team's kicking, has been the main cog in the Blue Streaks' attack in every game. He is rangy and a clever broken field runner.

The club seemed sluggish in whipping New Philadelphia 7-0 last week, and Snyder is trying to find the spark to set the attack into full speed.

Mansfield is riding along on a four-game winning streak and every member of the club will be out to keep the Tiger team in the list of undefeated and untied high school combats.

By virtue of a 7-6 win over Elyria, a team which defeated Sandusky, 13-6, the Tygers will enter the contest as a slight favorite, but anything can happen against the Blue Streaks.

The Tygers passed up at least five splendid scoring opportunities against the Quakers, but fumbles broke up the drives and Snyder hopes the backs have the bobbing tactics out of their system before Friday night.

The Mansfield coach will start the same lineup that faced New Philadelphia with John Weber and Bill Pecht holding down the guard berths. They replace Bob Lantz and Ed Kinkle, veteran linemen.

Mansfield's backfield will consist of Martin Henke at full, Jim Templeton and Elroy "Lightning" Jones at the halfback berths and Bill Doolittle at quarterback.

But Cincinnati hadn't forgotten Ernie. It roared when he went out to hit and boomed when he walked.

Ernie drove away from the ball park amid cheers—the cheers of Cincinnati fans for the hero behind the eight ball.

Seek Win

Madison High Out to Mark Up Initial Victory Against Tiffin.

FIGHTING desperately to register their initial football triumph of the season, the Madison high Rams entertain a dangerous Tiffin Junior Order club under the aces at Madison field at 8 p. m. Friday.

The contest will be preceded by a tilt between Woodville and Lincoln Heights junior high school teams. The first affray will start at 6:30 p. m.

Madison, which has dropped four games, has failed to impress Coach Al Fendrick and he is spending the week trying to mould together a winning combination.

The club has played fine defensive ball for three periods in most of the melées, but lack of reserve power has been a big drawback.

Fendrick has a number of promising freshmen on the squad, but the inexperienced youths have failed to live up to expectations.

Tiffin comes here with a smooth-working combine and Fendrick is not predicting anything. If the athletes play the type of ball they are capable of he thinks the Rams might pull an upset.

This year the Rams have lost to Wooster, New London, Dennison and Orrville.

Slapnicka Defends Indian Front Office

CLEVELAND (UP)—C. C. Slapnicka, vice president of the Cleveland baseball club, took issue today with Manager Oscar Vitt's complaint blaming non-support for his troubles.

"In answer to this statement Vitt made in regard to not receiving the support of the front office," Slapnicka said, "I wish to say that it was not a true statement of fact."

Vitt had opened up at his Oakland, Calif., home with the complaint a different situation would have prevailed had I been given the backing any manager is entitled to expect."

Vitt also cited an incident in which he said a player he had suspended returned with the explanation he had "fixed it up" with the front office.

Slapnicka replied: "Vitt's reference to a player whom he suspended likewise is only partially correct."

"It was at Manager Vitt's own suggestion and request that I talked to the player. The understanding was that if the player apologized to him, Vitt would consider the incident closed."

"I requested the player to call at the stadium the next day before reporting to the clubhouse. Without any solicitation on my part, the player said he realized he was wrong and agreed to make amends by apologizing to Vitt. He then went to the clubhouse and apologized."

"Since that was all Vitt requested, I can not construe this as a failure of the front office to support the manager."

The player obviously was Outfielder Jeff Heath, although his name was not mentioned. Vitt reprimanded Heath late in the season for slow play on a ball and argument brought the suspension order.

Vitt's future status will be determined by the club's directors who will meet in about three weeks.

Paul Scatters Seven Hits to Detroit Team

Frank McCormick, Ripple Hit Consecutive Doubles as Redlegs Triumph, 2-1.

CINCINNATI (AP)—Headachy but happy after a night of spectacular celebration, Cincinnati's baseball fans came to slowly today, pinched themselves a few times, and finally awakened to the realization it was true—the Reds had won that old championship.

Yessir, those good old Reds had done it. Whee! Old Paul Derringer, the people's choice, had licked Detroit's Buck Newcom, 2-1, in the seventh and deciding game as tense and thrilling a battle as ever climaxed a world series.

Streets of the town still were littered with the paper and rubbish that showered down from ten thousand windows an instant after Earl Averill, a pinch-hitter, slapped a ball at Lonnie Frey and was snapped off at first for the final out of the long-drawn play-off yesterday afternoon on Crosley Field.

Today the proud celebrants had only one big problem on their minds—to name the hero of the series. And it was a real problem, at that.

Derringer? The big pitcher who produced one of his greatest masterpieces, didn't permit an earned run to one of baseball's finest array of sluggers in the clinching struggle?

Bucky Walters? The stout hurler who twice in the series stopped the Tigers with three-hit and five-hit performances when the Reds were trailing by a game and whose fielding was spectacular?

Bill Werber? The scrapping third-baseman who led both clubs in hitting for the seven games with an average of .370 and whose fielding was spectacular?

Or even little Billy Myers, the shortstop, who clouted the long fly off Newcom in the seventh inning to score Jimmy Ripple from third with the Reds' second and winning run? Billy didn't do much before that, but in the view of Cincinnati fans he could have made up for a lifetime of lapses with that one vital blow.

Heroic in defeat was Buck Newcom who pitched the Tigers to two stirring victories, blanking the Reds over one stretch of 16 consecutive innings, but on whom the terrific pace finally told at the very climax of the series.

$25,950,000,000 Appropriations Voted Since Jan. 3

MONEY SLATED FOR SPENDING OVER 7 YEARS

Sum Represents Five Times Annual Average Income of U. S. Treasury.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON — This session of congress has voted since Jan. 3 to spend approximately $25,950,000,000 over a period of years.

That sum is approximately five times the average annual income of the United States treasury. But in voting so much directly, indirectly, and by commitment, congress neither intended nor expected all of it to be spent in a single year. Some of the spending—especially for the navy—will be over a period of six or seven years.

Total money appropriations by congress, including funds for national defense, were $16,900,000,000. There was an additional $8,000,000,000 authorized by congressional action for national defense and other agencies of government to sign contracts for future expenditure.

Beyond that there was a congressional authorization for the navy to expand. That authorization was for $4,386,000,000. Another authorization—no money voted but a formal congressional commitment to provide it in the future—was $400,000,000 for civil agencies of the government.

All of that adds up to more than $25,000,000,000. Of that sum, money appropriations for national defense amounted to approximately $8,700,000,000 and contract authorizations for national defense to $3,879,000,000.

The total of cash appropriations and contract authorizations for national defense at this session was approximately $12,580,000,000. Cash appropriations for government expenditure other than national defense at this session were approximately $6,500,000,000.

Here are the big money bills of this session—where your tax dollars for the most part go: Labor-federal security administration, $1,023,000,000; navy department (regular appropriation) $1,308,000,000; war department (regular appropriation) $1,720,000,000; relief $1,157,000,000; first supplemental national defense bill $1,479,000,000; second supplemental national defense bill $2,497,000,000; third supplemental national defense bill $1,324,000,000.

GARNER GOING BACK TO TEXAS

House Holds Up Recess For Congress, Continues on Minor Bill Work.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Vice President John N. Garner was on his way back to Texas again today, apparently believing that this session of congress has finished its work.

It is the second time Garner has gone back to his chicken and pecan ranch since the Democratic national convention in July. He was here only 33 days this time.

He left for his Uvalde, Tex., home last night and declined to say whether he plans to return later. Since returning last month he has been trying to get his colleagues to recess or adjourn.

But congress still is undecided what to do about a proposed recess until after the Nov. 5 election.

The senate begins a series of three day recesses today or tomorrow under a gentlemen's agreement that no important legislation will be brought up. It will meet only for "token" sessions twice a week to comply with the constitution.

Senators are willing to recess until after the election, but such a move is being blocked in the house by Republicans. Administration leaders there are threatening to call daily sessions in an effort to force capitulation of members who are holding out.

Today the senate considers a house-approved bill authorizing states to organize home guard units to replace national guard regiments that have been mobilized into the regular army. The house will continue work on minor bills.

Others from the club who plan to attend the conference are Mrs. Rose Bellman, Mrs. Mildred Perry, and Miss Irene Figler.

Colby spoke on "Personal Correspondence" and exhibited letters having signatures of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Charles Callahan was program chairman.

Next week the club plans to stage bowling matches at the Modern Recreation alleys following the regular dinner meeting.

RICHLAND RED CROSS CHAPTER DRAFTS PLANS FOR ROLL CALL

Plans for the annual Roll Call, Nov. 11-30, were discussed yesterday afternoon when the executive committee of the Richland county chapter of Red Cross held its regular meeting at headquarters.

Committees are being set up to work out the details of the Roll Call and for canvassing the city and county.

John H. Finnefrock, chairman of the chapter, heard reports from the various services, with first aid taking the lead for the past month. During September two first aid classes were completed, according to R. D. Eden, first aid chairman, and three new classes, enrolling 76 students, were launched.

Mrs. Leopold Adams, production chairman, reported that 163 new garments for war relief had been completed and sent during September, with 391 volunteer workers giving 2,833 hours of work. The first quota of 17,000 surgical dressings, Mrs. Adams said, had been completed and sent and a second quota for a like amount had been received and is being made up.

Mrs. W. J. Bishop, Junior Red Cross chairman, said that four pairs of eye glasses had been purchased during the month for underprivileged school children. Funds for this service are derived from sales tax refunds.

R. K. Clark, chairman of home service, reported 35 cases given service during the month. Those cases are made up of World War and Spanish war veterans, families of deceased veterans, men in the regular army service and the present war relief welfare work.

HEAR WOES OF CITY HAVING 'GROWING PAINS'

Civic Committee Hears of Crippled Operations in 5 City Departments.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates asserted that according to the national statistics, the Mansfield police department was undermanned by 10 men. He said the average for a city of 40,000 was one officer per 1,000 population.

"We are very near a crisis in this country," he told the group. "The first line of defense of any city is its police department. With sabotage already evident in industry the need for additional officers is more pronounced than ever before."

He cited increased crime during the past year due to the lack of officers to properly carry out investigations, pointing out that at times only five officers were working on a shift to protect the city.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger of a department undermanned to such an extent that temporary employees were hired to give firemen their vacations, and of antiquated equipment, more than 15 years of age.

He said that at no time did more than four firemen answer an alarm and asked what would happen if they had to cope with a fire that was out of control on their arrival at the scene.

Outdated equipment for which parts cannot be purchased, he said, caused a search among junk dealers any time equipment suffers from mechanized difficulties.

It was pointed out that although water improvements to be completed this year would afford the basis for some reduction in fire insurance premiums that replacement of present equipment was necessary before the city could expect to benefit materially in this respect.

A $10,000,000 airplane plant is being located at Columbus by the Curtiss-Wright corporation and the Aeronca Plane Manufacturers moved to Middletown from Cincinnati because Mansfield could not offer either company proper airport facilities. Dr. L. D. Bonar, past president of the Richland county chapter of the National Aeronautical association, said.

He said that had the port had hard-surfaced runways the Curtiss company would have given it consideration since the firm was not anxious to locate at a port with heavy traffic.

"This," he said, "is costing Mansfield thousands and possibly more annually because any location of industry at the port would give the city some return on its investment."

Herbert R. Slough, general chairman, named six committees to work out detailed plans for "selling" the levy to every Mansfield voter.

Named last night were: Publicity—R. O. Richards, J. Gilbert Baird, Edward Wyllie, and Leonard Jones. Advertising—L. J. Ott, Richard Burnham, and Howard Odell. Speakers—Dr. L. D. Bonar, Ben Goodenough, and Mrs. F. D. Boals. Finance—Roy Vaughn, Gordon Schwan, Harold George, Earl Saltzgeber, and Mrs. Marvel Cowell. President—Richard Burnham, Ben Goodenough, Edwin James, Howard Doner, Walter Diamondstone, Charles Robinson, James Hoffman, Mrs. Helen Young and Mary Newcomer. Educational—Police Chief Meade K. Bates, Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger, Roy Vaughn, Floyd Dent, Dr. L. D. Bonar, T. F. Geddes, Mrs. J. L. Stevens, Mrs. Lester Redding, Joseph Scanlon and David Creps.

Daily reading of scriptures in the public schools and a law permitting a county-wide local option on the liquor question were recommended today by the resolutions committee of the Cass-Bloomington township Sunday school convention.

The committee also went on record as being in favor of reviving the county convention with a "strong spiritual program" and urged offering of prayers for world peace.

It was also suggested by the committee that county officers should be petitioned to call a county convention in the near future.

The committee also urged training for young people to teach in the Sunday school and to lead in public prayer.

CHAPTER VII.

Jocelyn drew a long breath, spoke aloud.

"Well, I'm out of that!" she said suddenly. "I'm out of that. I wonder what's happened to me. I wonder what waked me up all of a sudden?" she went on conversationally. "It was all one way one minute, and just calm just being bored the next. A man whose wife was telephoning him about car keys and hand baggage and looking like the fool I am."

"I'll never forgive me, of course. The pride will be mortally wounded. Well, better his than mine! You're lucky, Jocelyn Britton!"

The road wound downhill in pitch darkness. Rain was again falling, and the little wipers of the car were busily at work. Jocelyn began to speak to herself aloud again, in a different strain.

"Where on earth am I? That rare way over there must be Oakland, but how do I get to it? What road, mudholes and ruts and potholes? I got turned off somewhere. Well, by just keeping downward I'll end up somewhere. Berkeley or Alameda or Emeryvale or somewhere."

Plenty of gas; plenty of oil, she drove on as busily as mud and rain permitted. Her keyboard clock said 11.

"I'm taking the nasty new look off the Johnsons' car fool that I am!" she reflected. "Why didn't I go over to Aunt Nell's and have an evening playing writing games or dancing with Rusty and Ned and Pete Smith? Good heavens!"

The last exclamation was wrong. Jocelyn sat still for a moment, weakened by the shock, then peered out to see what she could of the situation.

All around was the blackness of the rainy night. Her headlights showed a dirt road pitted with pools of mud and lumps of old concrete; this was certainly no part of the highway she had expected to follow. Down below her most of the heaving speckles that meant homes and lamps had disappeared, far away there was a long clean line of them; the highway between Oakland and Richmond perhaps, but there was nothing near. No gates, no houses, just empty road and rain.

She tried to back her car out of the soft mud. After a while she realized that the spinning wheels were going no further that night, and got down in the rain and groped for a rug in the baggage box and found two old blankets. "Life savers!" she said, rolling herself into them, curling herself up on the back seat to weather the dark hours until dawn.

She slept fitfully; saw the first uncertain streaks of day in the eastern sky and realized that she was on the wrong side of the hill. By the time there was enough light to see the road, she was a mile away from the car and on the north slope of the hill again, descending through the mud and chill of early morning toward the safety of the towns below.

A muddy car rattled behind her; a muddy little man with a good-natured weak face offered her a lift. Jocelyn climbed in thankfully beside him. Her good Samaritan, his breath reminiscent of alcohol, told her where to telephone for the right assistance in the matter of the car and her bag; told her something of himself as they went along. He had a little boy named Bruce, and had a girl named Florence, who had died. Oh, too bad! What had been the trouble? Meningitis? Oh, too bad. How old had she been? Just 3—that very day.

Jim Scudder had come over to see a feller named Boston—sure, that was a funny name, all right.

Bridgie Boston they called him. Jim had won a turkey in a raffle and had left it with Bridgie, who had a back yard. But he couldn't find the street; he always got lost over here in the Oakland streets; it was a heck of a thing, but he couldn't ever seem to find that fellow's place. But he knew a fellow in town who knew Bridgie, and he could phone him. Jim's wife was off him all right, oh, for boozing and running around, and he hoped to have a turkey sometime today with which to get her over her mad. And here was the railroad station and the lady was welcome. The glorious sun was rising on a clear cold wintry day.

"I wish you'd," she hesitated, battered and rain-damp and disheveled, but pretty sure he would not take her money.

"No, ma'am!" he said.

"Well, thank you a thousand times!"

"I was glad to do it. I hope you have a happy Thanksgiving."

"I hope you do!" her heart was singing; she had gotten out of a wretched predicament pretty well. She felt stiff and achy, but in a few minutes she could straighten up her clothes and comb back her hair in the dressing room on the boat, and afterward have breakfast.

"Miss Britton?" said a voice behind her. She wheeled on the station platform, terror seizing her. But it was only Philip Fordyce, in his low-hung dark blue car. He was leaning out, laughing at her. "I thought I knew that hair!" he said. And then, in amazement, "For heaven's sake, what have you gotten yourself into?"

"Everything!" she answered, desperately laughing in return. He leaned over to open a door.

"Get in," he said. "I'll run you home."

"I'd be ashamed, I'm such a mess!"

His answer was an unsmiling glance and a brief, "Get in!" and Jocelyn got in. Immediately the wide clean roads, packed and trim after the rain, were flying by them. Had she had breakfast? Neither had he.

They parked in the empty orderly stillness of Market street early on a Sunday morning, and were the first in the dining room of a hotel when it opened at 6 o'clock. "I was over at Clarendon last night at a party," the man explained. "Well, I'd promised to play golf this morning, down in Burlingame, and I wasn't sleeping awfully well, and so I got an early start. But what in the name of Sam Hill were you up to? I thought you were one of these real good girls."

Jocelyn, her usual appearance somewhat restored by a session in the dressing room with her own pocket comb and powder compact, laughed unashamedly.

"I did something very silly," she confessed as the blessed warmth of coffee began to penetrate the chilly fibers of her being. "And then I did something smart to get out of it, and got into worse trouble, in one way anyway, and got out of that, and here I am not quite knowing whether the whole thing was a dream. I have a friend who has a little studio up in the hills," she began her confession, "and some of us love to go there for week-ends. Well, yesterday the artist and his wife who usually go sent me a message that I thought meant they would be there, and I drove myself up, in the rain, and found instead that a man I especially like—used to like, was there alone."

"That's as good a story as any other," Philip said cheerfully, as she paused. Jocelyn laughed again, but her face was red. "You left your car where?" he presently asked.

She had noted corner posts, street names, as she had come down the hill in the dawn. Philip took out a well-filled notebook and carefully wrote down what she said.

"Give me your key," he said then briefly. "I've a man who looks after my cars, he'll see to it. And it's to go to the Portola Garage? That's yes, I know where it is. He'll have it cleaned and returned there today."

"I can't have you—" Jocelyn was far away from her usual moorings; she had never talked to Philip Fordyce except in the office before; she was dazed after emotional excitement and an almost sleepless night, and she could feel in her bones that a heavy cold was threatening her. But still she couldn't let a strange man assume the responsibility for her foolishness. "You mustn't do that," she said.

He paid no attention to this. He pocketed her key, and when the delicious breakfast was over, stopped the car only once before he deposited her at the Bush street boarding house. The stop was at a drug store, emerging, he placed a large, weighty, pink-wrapped package in Jocelyn's hands.

"Dissolve two of those pills in hot water and gargle, and take the others about oh, one every three hours," he said. "I put a hot-water bag in there; I didn't know if you had one. And I put the violet soap in to make it look more like a present."

She would not let him joke it off. Her voice was husky with gratitude. "You're awfully kind. I'm terribly grateful to you."

"I'm only too glad I happened along. I saw the hair, and thought that you were the only woman I knew with your sort of hair. This is your place? Good-bye and good luck. I'll—I took your telephone number, didn't I? I'll let you know about the car. And if you have any fever, don't show up Monday."

Twenty minutes before 8 Jocelyn had a hot bath, filled her rubber bag with boiling water; in the kitchen, returned to her room to struggle down gratefully under her blankets and fall instantly asleep. But she did not sleep long. She awakened restlessly at 10 o'clock, and unable to stand her own thoughts, dressed again, and went across the bay again, this time in the other direction, to join the family party at Aunt Nell's as calmly as if that had always been her intention.

It was a dreamy, unreal day for Jocelyn. Fortunately the big household at Maple Den was far too deeply and happily absorbed in its own affairs to notice anything strange or absent in her manner or to question her as to the abstracted moments into which she constantly lapsed. To her engagement was indeed announced, with much kissing and laughing and rushing all over the shabby, spacious, imperfectly warmed house, and at 2 o'clock a gargantuan meal was finally on the table and everyone's attention was concentrated upon the hot, delicious, plentiful and badly served food.

The six Partridge sisters, married and unmarried, were all pretty and giddy and witty and bursting with health and spirits; their one brother was a silent little fellow in junior high school, who sat watched with admiring smiles the father who held the dining room. The father of the big family was also quiet, also admiring. Dr.

Partridge was continually being kissed, appeals were continually being flung in his direction. Frequently a blond girl was in his lap winking up his mustache or using his ears as handles to gently bump his face against her own. But he rarely spoke.

Jocelyn's Aunt Ellen was the ruler and the moving spirit of this pandemonium. She was an enormous woman, weighing over 220 pounds and towering half a head over her husband. In manner she was gentle, deprecatory, hesitant. But her family and everyone else who knew her at all knew the iron will and the mulish stubbornness that underlay this mild exterior.

She rarely left her own disorderly house and overgrown garden. She lived for her husband, her son, daughters, grandchildren. Nothing was too good for them, or too much effort to secure for them, and they adored her. Her two sons-in-law were limply of the opinion that in any crisis she would support them even against her own girls, and the girls conceded it one of their rightest secret jokes—and they had many—that Mama always talked as if she sided with the boys and then worked things round to exactly what the girls wanted. There had never been much money for luxuries, but they all swam and played tennis and were experts in the arts of pie-making, cooking, game playing. Their home had been a clearing-house for the youth of the neighborhood for a dozen years, and such friends as had once pulled poor Nell Partridge, who had those six girls to marry off, now began to realize that her one feeling about their wedding was reluctance to let them go away from home, and that she would have handled half a dozen more without an instant's misgiving.

Mansfield News-Journal AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1940

You can't say politicians lack courage; look how many of 'em run on their records.

Word comes that Indians around Buffalo, N. Y., have resumed making arrow heads—probably as a contribution to the defense program.

If all goes well—and California's vote isn't too close—by a month from now you'll know how the election came out . . . if that's any satisfaction.

Heavy Registration Shows Interest

MANSFIELD'S record-breaking registration total reflects the indication of statewide interest in the big election which is now less than four weeks away.

The importance of the coming election—national and state—can scarcely be overestimated, nor should it be overlooked that county officials, a congressman, two state senators and judges of the state supreme court and court of appeals are also to be elected.

All polls thus far taken point to a close vote in Ohio for president and the situation is probably similar in some of the state, district and county contests—so there is every incentive for the intensive campaigning that will mark the next several weeks.

The privilege of voting is apparently becoming more appreciated as citizens of the United States ponder conditions existing in many parts of Europe and as they contemplate this country's military preparations and the possible developments of the next few months.

Such freedom of the ballot as is enjoyed by voters in the United States is a privilege accorded few other people in the world—it should not be taken too much for granted, else it may some day be lost.

What are YOU Thinking About?

THE NEXT MONTH will be marked by lively public interest in many subjects—local, state, national and world.

Thousands of News-Journal readers probably are thinking along lines that deserve more public notice than can be attained in conversation with friends and acquaintances.

As in the past, this newspaper invites communications of from one hundred to three hundred words on subjects of local or general interest, expressing views of the writer.

In order that the value of such views can be properly appraised it is necessary that the name and address of the writer be signed to each, as an anonymous signature carries little, if any, weight.

As an independent newspaper The News-Journal strives at all times to print the news without bias and to frankly express its editorial views on timely subjects, either local or in a broader field.

Some readers will agree with editorial opinions—others will disagree. That is unimportant. The important thing is that each reader should THINK—and that, whenever possible, other readers have access to this thinking.

Those people who vote, or act in any other way, without thinking, are obviously incapable of self government.

What are YOU thinking about? Why not write down your thoughts on a subject you regard as important (from 100 to 300 words), and send your letter to the editor, with your name and address, for use in the Readers' Forum?

Stimulant To Tourist Trade

AMONG other advantages which Mansfield will acquire with the installation of parking meters on downtown streets will be the greater convenience to transient motorists, who are now practically barred from making a short stop in the business district, either to eat or shop.

The hour's parking permitted in a 5-cent metered space ordinarily meets the need of such a stopover, either for a meal, to make a few purchases, or for relaxation and a look around town.

Nor will the 5-cent payment for metered space be resented by visiting motorists, who more likely will be appreciative of the ease in finding a parking space, but who naturally are disinclined to pay the dollar penalty for parking over-time in a 30-minute zone—as is now required.

Mansfield is advantageously located to attract a considerable amount of tourist business, not only as a convenient place for a night stopover but also in restaurant and other business lines. Whatever can be done to stimulate this trade by courtesies on the part of police officers and citizens will be justified by the more favorable impression thus made on strangers, as a visitor is inclined to estimate a city by the treatment accorded him while there.

Larger cities have learned this more quickly than many of the smaller ones—thus providing an example that may well be followed.

Political Self-Control

THE BRITISH, who created modern parliamentary government, are a gentle and long-suffering people. Otherwise they would never have tolerated so long, in these troublous times, the father of European "appeasement" and his associates. It is only now that Neville Chamberlain and his fellow-appeasers are retired to private life.

Thus another "experiment noble in purpose" comes to an end, after a tragic period that gave modern democracy the greatest shock it ever had, and came very near to destroying the British Empire.

But there is no vengeance. If it were Communist Russia or Nazi Germany or Fascist Italy or bewildered France, Chamberlain and his governmental associates might have been executed long before this.

The British make allowances. It is the nature of democracies not to be bloody and vindictive.

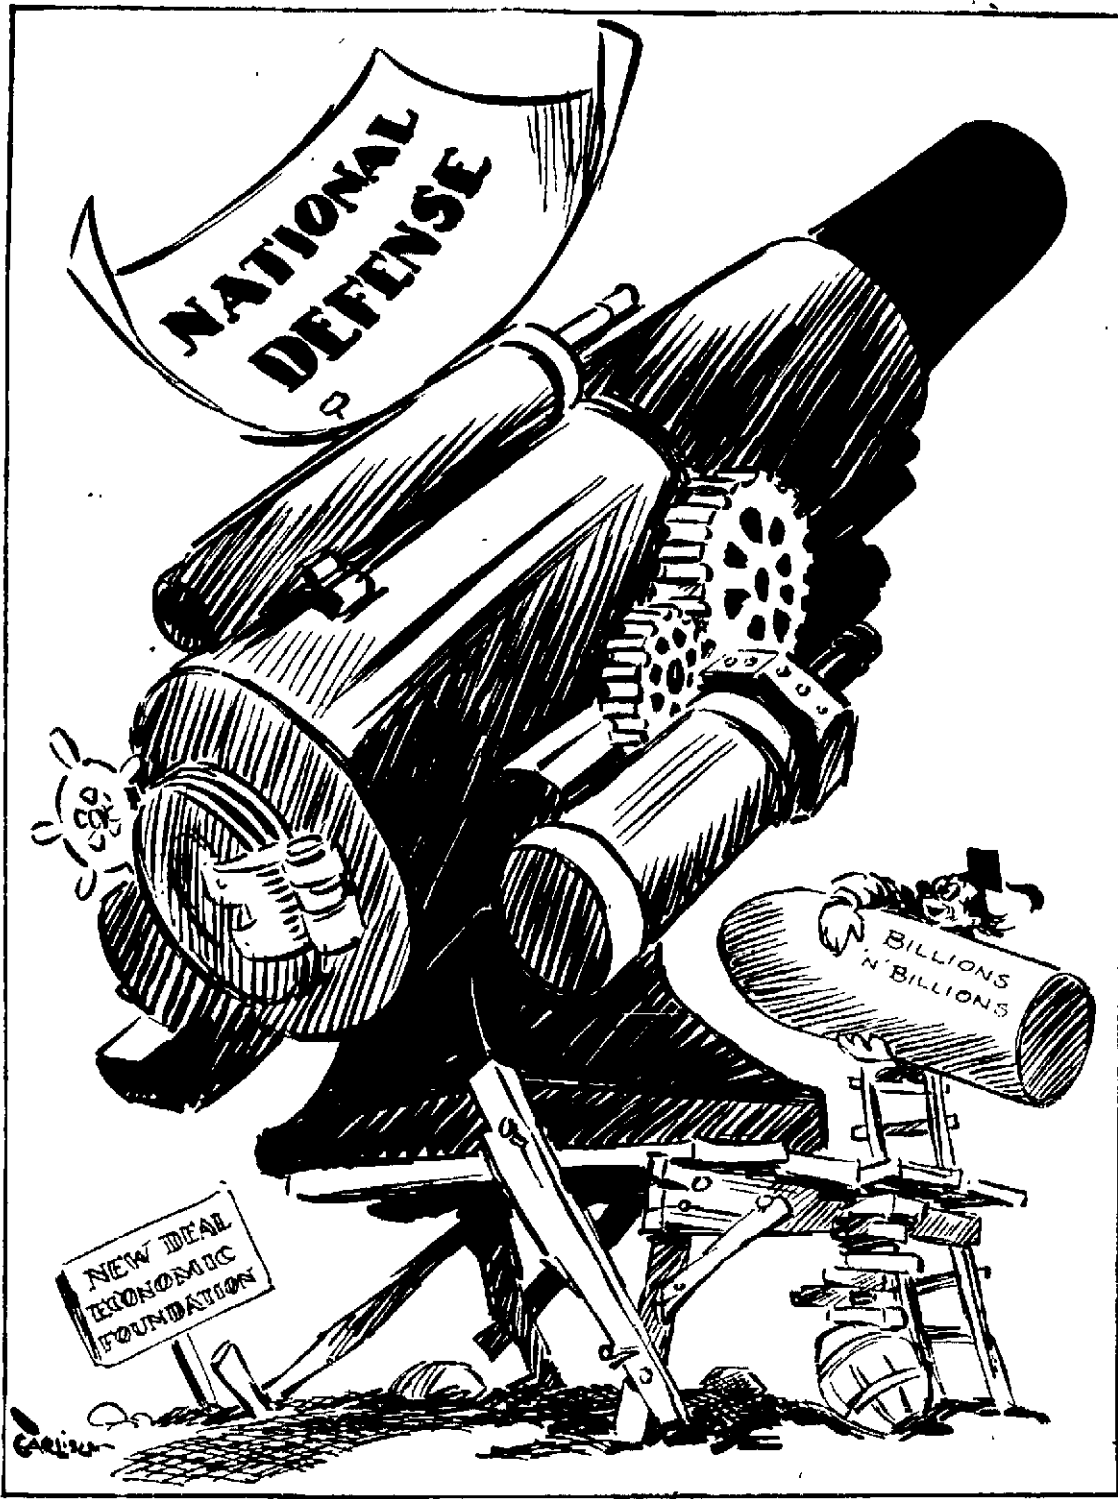

Perennials Require Attention

THERE'S a shock of surprise coming to the ordinary non-gardener when he reads that perennials are not perennial. That is to say, a perennial garden is good for only about five years. It is true that the plants come up of themselves every year, but if they are not fertilized, cultivated and generally labored and fussed over, they gradually run down, weaken and degenerate.

In other words, flowers are like human beings. The perennials go on reproducing, but, like human children, they need care and discipline if they are to flourish and amount to anything.

A medical authority says it takes brains to worry—so don't worry if you worry.

SHAKY MOUNTING FOR BIG GUN

Watterson's Third Term Views

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—All sorts of quotations are being dug up on the third-term issue, but one of the most interesting that has come to light was written by "Marse Henry" Watterson, famous editor of the "Louisville Courier-Journal," back in 1910. Obviously aimed at the ambitions of Theodore Roosevelt, it was printed in "Courier-Journal" on October 12, of that year.

Watterson was one of the idols of the Democracy in those days, not long before the end of his colorful life. It was Watterson who called for "75,000 volunteers to put Samuel J. Tilden in the White House" back in 1876, when the Republicans stole the election and seated Rutherford B. Hayes.

It is his to forbid an act of congress to become law.

"In the hands of a strong, ambitious and unscrupulous man, nothing short of armed resistance could stand against such an array of forces, an armed resistance could nowhere organize itself against a president having the foresight to provide against it; able by word to concentrate troops at any given point; by the touch of a button to order the arrest of the resistant at the furthest ends of the republic.

"There is no tyranny more unreasoning than that of majorities; no despotism so relentless as party despotism. Backed by these, while inventing a pretext, a president of the United States, could do with impunity what a czar of Russia, or a sultan of Turkey, would never dare attempt. Thus throughout the ages have absoluteism and arbitrary power done their perfect work. All that stands between the people and these is the time limit set upon the presidential elections and the third-term tradition bequeathed by Washington, which has for a period of a hundred years restricted the individual occupancy of the presidential chair to eight years.

Listen World!

That Stranger Inside

SQUEER—isn't it?—how you blow up, slop over or fade out at times when you've every intention of remaining Calm, Cool 'n' Collected.

Embarrasses you horribly, too—doesn't it?—to make such a spectacle of yourself. You despise people who flop in emergencies or fly into tantrums. You're sure that you've real desire. How in the world did such a contemptible creature happen to inhabit our decent brains, our fine bodies?

He happened to inhabit us because we invited him, built him, gave him his power.

Every time we give way to a reckless impulse without studying its consequences, we help create that ruthless, irrational "stranger within us." Every time we evade a challenging issue . . . abandon ourselves to irrational rage or desire . . . we endow that stranger with increasingly dangerous power. We thought that such impulses, surrenders and evasions "didn't matter."

BUT THERE IS NO SLIGHT-EST DEED OR THOUGHT WHICH DOES NOT MATTER. WE ARE THE SUM OF ALL WE HAVE THOUGHT OR DREAMED OR DONE . . . WE ARE AT THE MERCY OF ALL WE HAVE COMMITTED OR OMITTED.

There is NO "INCALCULABLE STRANGER" WITHIN US. THERE IS ONLY THE HIDDEN SELF, WHICH WE OURSELVES HAVE BUILT.

All right, there's the bad news. But what's the remedy? What'll set us free from these mysterious flops, flare-ups and fade-outs which so humiliate us now, you'll me? Just one thing: The Truth. To see ourselves as we really are; to estimate the profit or peril of our own impulses. That alone will set us free. But it'll take a lot of doing. Believe me, for I know? As a haven for "incalculable strangers," I'm a regular barracks!

Fifth Column Evidence Withheld, Nazis Finance Propaganda Work

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The Dies investigating committee now has documentary evidence of Nazi fifth column operations in the U. S. so explosive that its publication might lead to a complete rupture of diplomatic relations with Germany.

Because of this likelihood of international complications the committee has been nervously sitting on the load of dynamite, uncertain what to do. It has consulted the state department, which is just as jittery itself.

In fact, even more so. The department foresees the inevitable necessity of demanding the recall of a number of German diplomatic representatives, with certain retaliation by Berlin by the ousting of U. S. officials. In the present delicate state of U. S.-Axis relations, the department doesn't want to run that risk.

So on its urgent advice, the committee is sitting tight and continuing its secret probe of the subversive activities. The documentary evidence in the possession of the committee is staggering. It definitely establishes:

1. That the Nazi government is directly supervising and financing a nationwide fifth column campaign to oppose and obstruct the defense program, the U. S. government's foreign policy and aid to Great Britain.
2. That this activity is being carried on through German consulates and German-controlled papers, plus propaganda agencies of various kinds.

3. That Nazi consuls get detailed instruction from Berlin through regular short-wave broadcasts in code.

Column Fuehrer.

SUSPECTED master mind of the Nazi fifth column is Dr. Manfred Zapp, head of the Trans-Ocean News Service, a propaganda outfit with offices in New York and Washington. Zapp came to this country after being booted out of South Africa by the British government.

Trans-Ocean records seized by the committee show that Zapp is being financed by Berlin. He has received a number of bank drafts, among them one for $30,000, directly from the Bank of Berlin, and also considerable sums from the Bank of Mexico, which have been traced to German sources. Copies of letters written and received by Zapp, in the possession of the committee, end with the salutation "Heil Hitler."

Similar evidence involves the German Railroads Information Office, a professed tourist agency at 11 West 57th street, New York.

Hot Consuls.

TWO of the consuls implicated in the evidence the committee has turned over to the state department are Captain Fritz Wiedemann, at San Francisco, and Herbert Scholz, at Boston. Letters show both Nazis up to their armpits in fifth column enterprises.

Wiedemann, Hitler's World war captain, is recognized in diplomatic circles as his personal representative in this country. Situated on the West Coast, his role now is especially important as a result of the Axis-Jap alliance. Scholz is credited with being the guiding hand behind the American Fellowship Forum.

He has been closely associated with Friedrich Ernst Auhagen, Nazi lecturer and president of the Forum, who was seized in Los Angeles recently as he was attempting to board a ship for Japan. The committee is holding Auhagen as a key witness.

Other evidence in its possession discloses the existence of a secret fascist army in the U. S. running into the thousands. Chief organizers of this force have been the German-American Bund, the Ku Klux Klan, Italian-American clubs and German veteran societies.

Linked up with all these operations is the German Library of Information, official Nazi propaganda agency in New York. A raid by committee agents produced a mailing list of over 70,000 names, banks and business concerns in the New York area alone.

On the Battlefield.

REPS: Wendell Wilkie's zealous wooing of Senator Hiram Johnson was not in vain. The Californian has privately decided to endorse him and will make a public declaration shortly.

A militant isolationist and long a foe of Britain, Johnson generally disapproves of Wilkie's foreign views. But Johnson hates Roosevelt more than he dislikes Wilkie's international ideas, so the latter will get his very considerable political blessing.

DEMS: Senator David Walsh of Massachusetts is in a pickle. Up for election, he has Jim Farley's promise to make a speech for him. But Jim has let it be known that while he will speak for Walsh, he intends to say nothing in the talk about FDR. Publicly, Jim hasn't bolted, but he is as strongly anti-third term as ever.

Ohio Politics.

ONE political hot spot to which new Democratic Chairman Flynn will give detailed study on his swing around the country is Ohio, which he thinks Roosevelt has a chance to carry.

What confronts Flynn is the job of patching up an old and ugly political row between National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, who likes Roosevelt but isn't working very hard for him; and Martin Davey, who dislikes Roosevelt, but is working for him.

Reports coming into Democratic headquarters are that Davey is staging a whirlwind campaign for governor and is putting in all kinds of hard work, directly or indirectly, for Roosevelt. Sawyer, on the other hand, is doing little.

Democratic bigwigs suspect that this is because of Sawyer's antipathy for Davey. This dates back to the primary of 1936 when Sawyer opposed Davey for the Democratic nomination for governor.

One of the attacks made by Davey against Sawyer at that time was based on his wife, who was an heiress of the Proctor and Gamble soap fortune. Davey claimed that Sawyer was just a rich man who had taken advantage of his wife's money to climb the political ladder.

What Davey probably did not know at that time was that Mrs. Sawyer was dying of cancer. He kept on making these speeches, inferentially attacking her, up and down the state. Sawyer lost this fight (though he won two years later). A year later he also lost Mrs. Sawyer.

And he has never forgiven Davey. That is the breach which Ed Flynn will have to bridge if he wants Roosevelt to win in Ohio.

OHIO has 6,291 public schools which were attended last year by 1,243,793 students. In addition 61,020 students attended 48 colleges and universities in the Buckeye State.

There were 153,673 students in parochial, elementary and high schools.

Few private schools now exist in Ohio, but 7,200 students took elementary and high school work in such schools last year.

A Farmer's Diary

Autumn Colors

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

SEVERAL weeks ago I saw upon a woodland slope the early glowing leaf of a gum tree. It stood out like a flaming torch or like a scarlet tanager among the green border. Alone, it eddied in the early autumn breeze—a scarlet herald of the year about to die. That day the sun at noon was very warm, and later a timely thunder shower refreshed the drowsy thirsty hills. It gave the onlooker much the feel of springtime—but blooming goldenrod and purple asters told a different story.

Today the gum tree is aflame to the very tip, and at sunset seemed to burn from within without being consumed. It stands at the distant curve of the forest trail—the high accent in a gorgeous riot of color.

At this season, the shellbark foliage is green no more. Instead is seen the "sere and yellow leaf." Even the strong robust fragrance is absent. The killing frost, sun and rain have made the hickory leaves into crumpled lifeless heaps.

Ash and broadleafed poplar have faded no better. Each wears a shroud of gray. After last night's frost the air was calm and as the sun shone on the black walnut tree, silently the green compound leaves dropped from their moorings until the ground beneath was heavily covered. All day the fluttering broad leaves kept falling, until at evening the branches were as bare as in January.

The tops and southern lateral branches of our big maples flaunt fiery portions of red and yellow. The sassafras saplings on the steep slope above the house wear amazing colors of red, gray and

MANSFIELD CHAPTERS PLAN OBSERVANCE

Golden Jubilee of Daughters of American Revolution Scheduled for Friday; Two Groups Arrange Programs.

FRIDAY will mark the observance of the golden jubilee of the Daughters of the American Revolution when chapters throughout the United States numbering 143,455 members meet for special programs. Both the Mary Washington and the Jared Mansfield chapters of Mansfield have planned special observances.

The older group, the Mary Washington unit, will also observe the 43rd anniversary of its organization with a tea. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. M. W. Manz, Mrs. C. G. Fuller, Mrs. C. F. Ackerman, Mrs. L. J. Rorer and Mrs. A. R. Carter. Miss Mary Ellen Runyon is the only charter member of the chapter still living.

A dessert-luncheon will be served at the Women's Club at 1 p. m. for the Jared Mansfield chapter the same afternoon. The past regents will be in charge of the program and Mrs. Stanley Richardson and Mrs. Carl Henkel will serve as hostesses.

Washington, D. C., society and club leaders will witness a two-day celebration of the event when charter members of the D. A. R. are honored at a banquet, and a variety of special affairs will be conducted. A coast-to-coast broadcast of the program will be given from 1:50 to 2 p. m. Friday when Mrs. Henry M. Robert, Jr., president general, speaks on "Golden Opportunities."

The purpose of the anniversary celebration is to acquaint the general public with the wide extent of the accomplishments of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution. For half a century this organization has been steadfastly promoting the three objects: Namely: To perpetuate the memory and spirit of the men and women who achieved American independence.

To carry out the injunction of Washington in his farewell address "to promote, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge."

To cherish, maintain and extend the institutions of American freedom, to foster true patriotism and love of country, and to aid in securing for mankind all the blessings of liberty.

During the years various projects have been developed and promoted until now the organization has an imposing headquarters at Washington, works with the foreign born, contributes toward conservation of both lives and resources, conducts good citizenship pilgrimage contests for high school students, develops junior groups, gives Philippine scholarships, maintains a student loan fund, aids in patriotic education, maintains workers at Ellis Island gives awards to Annapolis, West Point and the Coast Guard academy.

District Meeting Of Junior Music Clubs Scheduled

The Middle-north district meeting of junior and juvenile clubs of the Ohio Federation of Music Clubs will be held Oct. 13 at Upper Sandusky. It was announced this morning. The affair will begin with registration in the senior high school auditorium at 1:30 p. m. followed by a business meeting at 3 p. m. and a musical program by members of the 14 participating clubs.

Mrs. Gaylord Fuller, state president, and Miss Virginia Carter, state junior counselor, will be the guest speakers. Approximately 75 members of the Mansfield clubs, their parents and friends are expected to attend. There will also be delegations from Ashland and Bellville, as well as other neighboring communities.

The Treble choir, directed by Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine, counselor, will appear with Robert Early and Don McLaughlin, accompanied by Olive Jean Hughes, representing the Crescendo club which is directed by Mrs. E. D. Gibson. These students were first prize winners last year. The Boy Violinists will play as representatives of their own club and the Junior Music Study club, groups counseled by Mrs. Gibson. Mrs. John Klinger and Miss Dorothy Dann, Janie Bushnell will represent the Little Mozarts which Frances Brinkerhoff directs. She will play some of her own piano compositions.

Mrs. Gibson is district junior counselor.

As for new fall robes, some very smart botany flannel ones are being shown in wrap-around styles with princess backs and tie-fronts. Aqua and dusty rose are the shades they come in. Corduroy robes are being featured too this fall in both wrap-around and zipper styles. Fashioned with a giraffe-effect waist and tie-front, these robes are made up in combinations of duobonnet and dusty rose and deep blue and dusty rose.

Then if you're looking for a gift for a friend, or something to give you a luxurious air, you'll find that one of those lovely hand-painted nightgowns will fill the bill. They're made from soft pink or blue crepe—one style with puffed sleeves, and the other with lace-trimmed shoulder straps. Both have yokes decorated with dainty hand-painted flowers—which won't wash off, and won't melt off if you use only a warm iron when pressing the garment.

YOU CAN BRIGHTEN any costume to perfection with the pretty new jewelry that's on display in some of the local stores just now. Foxtail chains have been made into some beautiful necklaces. There are some necklaces that feature three chains (in pink, yellow and white gold tones) braided together, others that are combined in a fine twist and some graduated strands. Chain necklaces and bracelets decorated with gold plated flowers also are attractive, and one set that I saw yesterday had a flower of yellow and pink gold with a light blue sapphire center. Gold plated daisy pins are as practical as they are attractive. Each of these pins has on it two flowers with ruby or sapphire centers, and these are clips which can be removed and used in various ways as trim on most any dress.

Jewelry made from genuine branch coral is always as popular as it is pretty, and now you can buy it in pins, bracelets and necklaces. Necklaces and bracelet sets of enameled beads in gunmetal and blue also are smart, and for less formal wear, that safety pin jewelry is quite clever. Made from medium-sized safety pins, closely strung together on fine elastic, these necklaces and bracelets come in all yellow gold, white gold, or combinations of yellow, pink and white.

THE PRETTIEST COMPACTS I've seen in many months are those which feature hand-made petit point tops. In floral and scenic designs of many colors, these petit point designs boast of 1,650 stitches to an inch! Midget compact in gleaming black or gold, trimmed with graduated pearls are smart—especially for evening use, and double vanity cases (some of which even contain combs) in black enamel, decorated with rhinestones also are attractive.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

Install Miss Naomi Stutz President of Chi Sigma Group

MISS NAOMI STUTZ was installed as president of Chi Sigma sorority yesterday evening following a formal dinner party at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, and the retiring president, Miss Florence Nail, was installed as president of Delta province. Others, who also assumed their offices at the same time, were: Miss Marjorie Rhoads, vice president; Miss Mary Lou Hout, secretary; Miss John Courtney, treasurer, and Miss Jane Cunningham, sergeant-at-arms. Miss Nail was presented with a gift from the sorority for her two years of service as president.

Members to serve in appointive offices were then named by Miss Stutz. Miss Margaret McFadden will act as the corresponding secretary, and Miss Marianne Springer, reporter, to be assisted by Mrs. Eugene Linham. The historian will be Miss Eileen Logan, and the reporter for the sorority's national monthly paper, will be Miss Dorothy Crawford. Miss Thelma Huth was named custodian, and Mrs. H. E. Amsbaugh, flower fund chairman.

The guests were seated at a U-shaped table for dinner, and it was decorated with autumn flowers and leaves and lighted by yellow tapers. Bridge was played FETED. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Burns, Jr., were feted last night with a surprise housewarming and pantry shower at their new apartment on Bowman street. Mrs. Burns is the former Miss Radene Hill. There were 14 present for the affair. Arrangements were made by Mrs. Vernon Mulquin, Mrs. Beatrice Wagner and Mrs. Harlow Tremaine.

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

DO YOU like to read in bed before turning out the lights for the night? Or are you one who enjoys the luxury of breakfast in bed? Then you'll be pleased with the pretty little bed jackets they're showing downtown now. Quilting seems to be much in vogue, and so most of them are quilted to add a note to their style. Some are of satin—others of jersey, but they're all in pale pink, blue, white or tea rose—flower spunged and button trimmed. One style even has a gown to match.

Marianne

While we're speaking of night clothes, I also want to tell you about some brushed rayon pajamas and gowns I saw while shopping yesterday. They'd certainly be ideal for cooler weather; they come with short or long sleeves in shades of peach, aqua, powder blue and coral. Brushed broadcloth pajama sets are new too—featuring jersey tops. They can be used for sleeping or lounging, and the colors are green, coral and blue in a variety of combinations.

As for new fall robes, some very smart botany flannel ones are being shown in wrap-around styles with princess backs and tie-fronts. Aqua and dusty rose are the shades they come in. Corduroy robes are being featured too this fall in both wrap-around and zipper styles. Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Was there anything else your father wished of me?" she asked, and with a negative answer, I took the hint and my departure.

I sped back to the room I shared with Lillian, passing Otto laden with luggage, in the hall, and when she had unlocked the door and looked it again, she spoke quickly, insistently.

"You didn't tell Olga she could spill the beans about the emeralds to Olinia. I'm sure you didn't, but I just want to be certain, for, of course, mother-like, she put the question."

"Yes, she did," I answered, a bit heavily, "but I told her my father had said nothing on that score, and she acquiesced at once. She's terribly thrilled over telling Phil about them."

"Of course she would be," Lillian said, and then she faced me with a question as to the particular thing concerning which Phil wants our advice before seeing Olga."

"Not a glimmering," I told her truthfully. "I haven't had time for any speculation. What do you think?"

"Something that I haven't time to tell you," she said, "for old Phil will be barging in here pretty soon now. I was sure I heard Otto down the hall a minute ago."

"I passed him in the hall," I told her.

"Then we haven't any time for discussion," she said. "Theatrically speaking, old Phil's a 'quick change' when he wants to be. There's only one thing I want to ask you, and that quickly. I want it a lot."

"It's yours for the asking, whatever it is," I told her, smiling.

"I hope so," she said, "for I want it a lot. I have a pretty shrewd idea of the general tenor of Phil's forthcoming remarks and appeal for advice, and I want you to take a firm grip on that Puritan conscience of yours and throttle it until it's unconscious. You'd better let me take the lead in the advice giving. Although in other circumstances, I'd be the one to keep mum. But I can't trust your high ideals if the forthcoming conversation is what I think it's going to be. So if you'll just follow my lead and agree with me, you can make as many 'mental reservations' as you wish, and when your conscience comes out of the ether, you can assure it that you were coerced and tortured into

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Oct. 10.

While there are excellent prospects of promotion, preferment, dignities with various tokens of favoritism and esteem from those in power, yet these splendid promises may be beset by signs of opposition, obstruction and other unfriendly gestures, possibly at the hands of elders or old established institutions. Judging by the lunar transits of this day, from all directions there may arise difficult situations to test the endurance, sagacity and good judgment in well-nigh hopeless circumstances. But precaution, persistence and being able to convince superiors of merit, stability and high purpose should win.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves launched into a year in which they may have to break down stubborn resistance, difficult situations as well as hostility from elders and old organizations, by proving stability of character, soundness of judgment and patient resolve to win out against all odds by the merit and practicability of projects and proposals. Employers and those in standing and financial power may be convinced by proper approach and tactics, with resulting progress, advancement and signs of preferment and favors as well. Be alert to all duplicity and sign papers with especial precaution.

A child born on this day may have many sterling traits of character and much energy and ambition, which it may be required to demonstrate to some who doubt and stubbornly oppose. In the long run it will gain place and prestige with preferment from those in high positions.

"I'm not going to ask you to tell a single taradiddle," she said. "I'm simply going to request that you do not air a yen which you share with many other good and misled people. There! What did I tell you? There's Otto now!"

It was indeed Otto's loud and clumsy knock which was pounding upon the door. When I opened it, he bobbed his head in awkward greeting.

"Mr. Veritzen say he is — at your service," he intoned, spacing the words, and we had a sudden mirthful vision of the great impresario schooling his chauffeur in the message.

"Thank you, Otto," I said. "Will you please tell Mr. Veritzen we shall be right over."

He bobbed his head again and left us, and when a minute or two later we went over to see our old friend, Otto had disappeared. But Mr. Veritzen's first question was not a bid for advice.

"Will Olga see me?" he asked as eagerly as a schoolboy in the throes of his first love affair might have done.
